APPENDIX

Minutes of a Business Meeting of Members of the Conference, held at Cornell University, Ithaca, New York, U.S.A., on Thursday evening, August 26, 1930, John P. Maxton presiding.

A. W. Ashby on behalf of the committee presented the resolutions, containing the constitution and the provisions for the temporary organisation of The International Conference of Agricultural Economists:

"Those who formed the scheme for this Conference and arranged the first two meetings have desired to put the organisation on a more formal basis. No one, I think, wants anything like that amount of formality that leads to stagnation. All of us want such an amount of clarity and certainty as will lead to confidence and enterprise. We hope the Conference will grow in strength and in representative character, and we hope that it will become permanent. Hence, we want to give it that amount of foundation constitution on which it may develop.

"The committee was extended last week to consider and bring forward a set of foundation rules. Representatives of six countries, I believe, sat on the committee. There are three organised National Societies of Agricultural Economists, and these were represented. I say represented advisedly, for no one attended as a delegate or with any kind of instructions.

"Now, we cannot wholly formalise the proceedings at this moment, or, I think, even work within permanent rules. In the interval between this meeting and the next Conference we have to develop from the stage at which this Conference was organised to the stage of working under a set of simple rules.

"The documents before you provide for this. The longer document sets out the foundation rules under which the next Conference would be organised, and, if they prove to be satisfactory, the following Conferences. The shorter document provides directions for organising and working until the more permanent rules can be brought into full operation.

"The drafting of the rules proved more complicated than I expected. We have to consider how best to bring together the people concerned. We want to combine three things—a truly international organisation, individual membership, and effective local organisation—in order that the Conferences may serve their objects. We have to face the fact that at the end of this week we will be scattered over the face of the earth—some have already scattered—and yet that we must give to officers authority to act for the Conference, and give them also the support of the wisdom and activity of a committee which fully represents the common interests of all members. This the committee has tried to arrange."

The draft constitution was duly put to the meeting clause by clause, and each clause was approved by the meeting.

The meeting then proceeded to the election of officers. The following were elected unanimously:

President—L. K. Elmhirst, Dartington Hall, Totnes, Devon, England.

Vice-President—G. F. Warren, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York, U.S.A.

Vice-President—Max Sering, University of Berlin, Berlin, Germany.

Secretary-Treasurer—J. R. Currie, Dartington Hall, Totnes, Devon, England.

CONSTITUTION OF THE INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF AGRICULTURAL ECONOMISTS

The name of the organization shall be The International Conference of Agricultural Economists.

The object of the Conference is that of fostering the development of the sciences of agricultural economics and of furthering the application of the results of economic investigations of agricultural processes and agricultural organization in the improvement of economic and social conditions relating to agriculture and rural life.

Meetings: Meetings shall be held at a time and place determined by the Council. No two successive meetings shall be held in any one country.

The Conferences of 1929 and 1930 shall be called, respectively, the first and second International Conferences of Agricultural Economists.

Membership: Membership shall consist of individuals who pay 20 Rm., $5, or £1, or the monetary equivalent of £1, for the period of a Conference and the interval extending to the succeeding Conference.

Libraries, corporations and similar institutions may become members if a duly accredited representative is appointed by such institutions.

Those who become members within one year from the date of the adoption of this constitution shall be considered charter members.

Officers: The officers shall be a president, two vice-presidents, and a secretary-treasurer. The officers shall hold office for a period ending with the close of the next succeeding Conference.

Election of Officers: The council shall nominate officers to be elected by the Conference.

Council: The members of the Conference in each country or group of countries may provide for the election of members of a council as hereinafter provided:

(a) Each country or group of countries with five or more members may elect one member to council. An additional member of the council may be elected by each country or group of countries for each additional ten members with a maximum of three members of council from any one country or group of countries.

(b) Members of the council shall be elected prior to or during each Conference for the succeeding Conference. The council elected in 1930-31 shall continue in office for the purpose of the next Conference until the end of that Conference, and the council constituted in the early part of each subsequent Conference shall nominate officers and executive committee for the ensuing Conference.

It shall be the duty of the members of the council to elect an executive committee of eight members, to nominate officers of the Conference, and to promote the interests of the Conference in the respective countries.

Executive Committee: The executive committee shall consist of the four officers and eight members elected by the council. The executive committee shall arrange programs and otherwise conduct the business of the Conference. The executive committee shall fill any vacancies which may occur in any office.

Amending Constitution: The constitution may be amended by a majority vote at any Conference provided the amendment has previously received the approval of a majority of the council.

PROVISIONS FOR THE TEMPORARY ORGANIZATION OF THE
INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF AGRICULTURAL ECONOMISTS

Since the constitution does not make all necessary provisions for immediate organization, the committee submits the following suggestions for the guidance of the Conference until the provisions of the constitution can be made effective.

1. (a) The officers for the period of the third Conference shall be elected by this Conference.

(b) Persons who signify their intention of becoming members of the Conference before the Conference proceeds to the election of officers may vote in the election of officers.

2. (a) The members of the council may be elected by members of the Conference in any country or group of countries as provided for in the constitution.

(b) The method of electing councilmen shall be left to the discretion of each electing country or group of countries, but until the original membership is secured a correspondent shall be appointed by the executive committee to canvass his country for members and provide for the election of members of the council.

3. (a) The members of the council when selected shall become members of the executive committee until a total of 16 or more members of the council has been selected by members.

(b) When 16 or more members of the council are selected, the executive officers of the Conference shall arrange for the election of 8 members to the executive committee by the members of the council.

TOUR PRIOR TO THE OPENING OF THE SECOND INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

In response to the desire of some of the delegates from other countries to see as much of the agriculture of the United States as possible, a tour was organized under the leadership of Professor H. C. M. Case of the University of Illinois. In a period of three weeks a distance of three thousand miles was covered, two-thirds of which was made by bus. Through the sponsorship of Mr. William Butterworth, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, the greater part of the finances for the trip were made available by several large implement companies.

In all, twenty-three people from England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland, Finland, Japan and South Africa participated in the tour. After meeting in

New York and spending some time seeing points of agricultural interest in New York and adjacent territory under the leadership of Dr. G. F. Warren, the tour began. The party was directed to Washington, D.C. where two days were spent in becoming acquainted with the United States Department of Agriculture and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America. Some time, of course, was spent in sight seeing.

The next stop was at Columbus, Ohio, where the Ohio State University was visited together with some farms, the Ohio Farm Bureau, and co-operative marketing associations. The trip continued by train to Indianapolis, from which point the tour was made by bus. At the University of Illinois, a thorough inspection was made of the organization and research work of the Illinois Experiment Station and the College of Agriculture. A number of farms of different types were visited in the vicinity, most of which were cooperating with the University in farm management work. A dinner was held with about thirty-five farm leaders at Bloomington, Illinois.

Following this, visits were made to a large creamery and produce company and to the Holt Caterpillar Company in Peoria. At Moline, Illinois, the plants of Deere and Company, the International Harvester Company, and the Minneapolis Moline Plow Company were visited. The trip to the Iowa Agricultural College at Ames included a stop at the Collins Farm Corporation at Cedar Rapids. After an inspection of the Iowa Agricultural College and Experiment Station a stop was made at Charles City where the Oliver Farm Equipment Company is located.

On the way to the University of Minnesota a stop was arranged by the staff of the College of Agriculture at a farm near Northfield, and a dinner with the local farmers and business men was held. At St. Paul, in addition to the University, visits were made to the Pillsbury Flour Mills and the Land O' Lakes Creamery. Besides points of agricultural interest, opportunity was taken to include in the trip as many points of scenic interest as possible. This was especially true of the trip through Minnesota and Wisconsin. At Madison, visits were made to the Experiment Station, the College of Agriculture, and the United States Forest Projects Laboratory, as well as to a farm at Elkhorn.

A full schedule in Chicago included visits to the Union Stock Yards, packing plants, the Board of Trade, the Illinois Agricultural Association, and the International Harvester Company. Plans were revised after reaching Chicago to include a baseball game between the Chicago Cubs and the Brooklyn Robins who were then tied for league leadership and a close game added to the interest. Following a stop at the Oliver Farm Equipment Plant at South Bend and farms in Indiana, the party crossed to Canada to visit the Experiment Station and the College of Agriculture at Guelph as well as farms en route to Niagara Falls, which was the last stop on the trip to Ithaca.

Throughout the trip the group was entertained at dinners by local groups of farmers, luncheon clubs, chambers of commerce, colleges and various companies.

TRIP TO VISIT FARMS IN WESTERN NEW YORK

On the day following the close of the International Conference of Agricultural Economists a group of visitors left Ithaca on a two-day trip to visit fruit and crop farms in western New York. On the first day the group included about thirty persons, but six or eight of these left at Rochester, New York, at the close of the first day's run.

Private automobiles were used and in most cases the drivers were familiar with the roads of western New York. On the back of each car was affixed a placard labeled "International Conference of Agricultural Economists" so that the cars of the party could easily be distinguished from other automobiles that might get into the procession. With one local car to lead and another one to bring up the rear, no difficulty was experienced in keeping the cars together on the entire trip.

The party left Willard Straight Hall about 9:30 A.M. on Friday, August 29, and returned to Ithaca about 9:00 P.M. on the following day. Each member of the party was given a mimeographed schedule of the entire trip. This schedule indicated the exact route from farm to farm, the number of miles and approximate time required. It also gave the approximate time to be spent at each farm and a brief description of the farm including type of farm, location and soil. In most cases a financial summary of the farm business for a recent year was also included which gave details regarding crop and livestock enterprises, capital investment, receipts, expenses and net income.

From one to two hours were spent on each farm. On arrival the farm operator usually conducted the party on a brief tour of the farm to give them a general idea of the crops, soils and layout of the farm. After this an opportunity was given to the various members of the party to ask questions of the farmer regarding details of his business in which they were interested.

On the first day the party travelled a total of about 120 miles and visited four farms. On the second day with an earlier start, 175 miles were covered and four farms were visited. All of the farms visited were successful farms operated by men who were making their entire living from the soil. They were selected so as to include most of the important types of farming in the region covered.

The farms visited included the following:

Fred Smith, Trumansburg, New York—potatoes, beans, milk, hay and grain crops.

J. L. Salisbury, Phelps, New York—apples, cabbage, potatoes, poultry and wheat.

K. C. Livermore, Honeoye Falls, New York,—seed potatoes, seed oats, seed wheat, seed beans and cabbage seed.

J. H. Anderson, Titus Avenue, Irondequoit, New York—an intensive vegetable farm.

Irving Austin, Morron, New York—an intensive apple and peach farm in the best fruit district of western New York.

G. B. LaMont, Albion, New York—apples, peaches, cabbage, tomatoes, cucumbers, and general crops.

R. V. Call, Batavia, New York—potatoes, cabbage, certified grain, canning crops, general crops and fat lambs.

G. F. Britt, Stafford, New York—potatoes, cabbage, cucumbers, general crops and fat lambs.
