ECONOMICS OF FORESTRY

A Bibliography for the United States and Canada
1953 - 1954

PREFACE

The bibliography, Economics of Forestry, 1940-1947, was issued in 1950 by the U. S. Department of Agriculture Library in cooperation with the Charles Lathrop Pack Forestry Foundation, the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the Society of American Foresters. Subsequently that Library issued a supplement to the bibliography covering the years 1948-1952. Because of the continuing need for an up-to-date bibliography in the field of forest economics, the School of Forestry of the University of California has now compiled a companion supplement to cover the years 1953 and 1954.

In order to assure that this bibliography will be a companion to its two predecessors, the same style of citing references and system of abbreviations have been followed as nearly as possible. In addition, the same table of contents found in the U.S.D.A. Library Supplement has been used in this supplement to provide additional continuity between the three bibliographies.

The only way in which the present supplement differs markedly from its two companions is in the subjects used in the index. The system of subject headings used in the index is a combination of that used in two others--that of the bibliography Economics of Forestry, 1940-1947 cited above and that of Research in the Economics of Forestry by Duerr and Vaux. Furthermore, many of the subheadings under the major subjects of Forest, Forestry, and Forests in U.S.D.A. bibliographies have been placed in straight alphabetical sequence in this bibliography as subjects in their own right.

Call numbers following the entries are those of the U.S.D.A. Library unless the symbol for another library's collection is shown, e.g., Libr. Cong., Dept. Interior. The symbol FS stands for the files of the U. S. Forest Service. Theses without call numbers usually may be obtained from the colleges and universities issuing them.

The compilation was done by the School of Forestry with the help of the General Library, University of California, Berkeley, while the printing and distribution was handled by the Division of Forest Economics Research, Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The principal work of compilation was done by Mrs. Mary Jackman and Miss Margaret W. Berry, bibliographers at the School of Forestry, and by Robert O. McMahon, a graduate student in forest economics. The 1,200 items included in this supplement reflect the results of examining 2,500 references.

Miss Mary L. Eakin and Mrs. Esther M. Johnson of the School of Forestry Library have given invaluable assistance and encouragement toward the completion of this bibliography. We are also indebted to Mrs. Margaret S. Bryant and Miss Frances J. Flick of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Library for their very helpful suggestions regarding procedure.
