UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Bureau of Agricultural Economics

Contributors

Contributors are on the staff of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics unless otherwise stated

EARL E. HOUSEMAN, statistical consultant, Office of the Chief, is a frequent contributor to this magazine.

SHERMAN E. JOHNSON, Assistant Chief of Bureau, returned in May from his second stay in England within the last few years.

ROY J. BURROUGHS divides his time, in the Division of Agricultural Finance, between farm housing studies and the Balance Sheet of Agriculture. He has been one of the joint authors of the Balance Sheet since its inception.

GEORGE KNUTSON, agricultural statistician for Wyoming, has given varied and valued service both within the Department and outside. FLOYD K. HARMSTON transferred from SCS to BAE a few years ago, then served in the Army for 2 years, and is now on the staff at Cheyenne.

CHARLES F. SARLE is in Turkey on the ECA mission described in his article. Somewhat similar work he performed in Japan was reported in this magazine last year.

GLADYS L. BAKER, agricultural historian, began work in the Department in the program planning division of AAA. Dr. Baker served in the research division of OPA and since her return has been on the history project in connection with the records of World War II.

FORREST E. CLEMENTS heads the Division of Special Surveys from which the results of many research studies of consumer preferences are being published.
