UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Bureau of Agricultural Economics

Contributors

Contributors are on the Staff of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics unless otherwise stated

ORIS V. WELLS has been chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics since 1946. He entered Government service as Junior Economist in 1929, and since then has been with the Bureau continuously except for 9 months (1931-32) at Harvard for graduate study, and 5 years in the middle 1930's with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

HELEN R. WHITE was recently appointed acting head of the Farm Population Section of the Division of Farm Population and Rural Life in BAE. The article of which Mrs. White is co-author was written while she was in the Bureau of the Census, with the Estimates and Forecast Unit, Population and Housing Division.

JACOB S. SIEGEL, chief of the Estimates and Forecasts Unit, Population and Housing Division, Bureau of the Census, also serves as specialist in population estimates and projections in the International Statistics Section of that Division. He and Mrs. White have collaborated in preparing projections of the population of the United States by age and sex, and by States, for the Bureau of the Census.

BEATRICE M. ROSEN is a specialist in current estimates and projections of the population of the United States. She is a statistician in the Estimates and Forecasts Unit of the Population and Housing Division, Bureau of the Census.

EARL E. HOUSEMAN has had a wide variety of experience with survey methods. He is statistical consultant, Office of the Chief of the Bureau.

REX F. DALY, head of the Demand and Price Section of the Division of Statistical and Historical Research, devotes most of his time to appraisals of economic conditions affecting the demand for farm products. He prepares The Demand and Price Situation, a monthly report of BAE.

CONRAD TAEUBER is assistant director of the Bureau of the Census. He has taught sociology and statistics and has been secretary of the American Sociological Society.

WAYNE D. RASMUSSEN, a member of the staff of the History Section, Division of Statistical and Historical Research, is acting editor of Agricultural History.
