Contributors

Contributors are on the Staff of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics unless otherwise stated

- ALVIN T. M. LEE, Chief of the Section on Prices and Values, Agriculture Division, Bureau of the Census, is in charge of the work on classification of farms by type and economic class. He was formerly with the Division of Land Economics in BAE.
- KENNETH L. BACHMAN, Head of the Section on Farm Classification and Analysis in the Division of Farm Management and Costs, has represented BAE in cooperative work with the Bureau of the Census relating to the development of economic classification of farms and analysis of the data.
- EARL O. HEADY is professor of agricultural economics at Iowa State College. He is a frequent contributor to the economic journals that are concerned with research methodology in agricultural production economics.
- ROSS V. BAUMANN, agricultural economist in the Division of Farm Management and Costs, is stationed at Iowa State College, where he cooperates with the Station staff in conducting studies of the economics of soil conservation adjustments and the utilization of grass and legume crops in livestock production.
- J. C. BLOOD recently became one of the statisticians in the Michigan office of Agricultural Estimates. After a tour of duty with the Army Air Corps during the war, he completed undergraduate studies at Oklahoma A. and M. College and Purdue University. He was a research assistant at Michigan State College when he joined BAE.
- C. J. BORUM, statistician in charge of the Michigan office of Agricultural Estimates, has contributed to earlier issues of this journal.
- D. B. DELOACH, Associate Head of the BAE Division of Marketing and Transportation Research, before entering the Bureau was Professor of Agricultural Economics at Oregon State College. He is author of several publications on the economics of marketing agricultural commodities.
- ERLING D. SOLBERG, trained in both law and economics, is author of publications on rural zoning and legal aspects of farm tenancy. He is a member of the staff of the land problems section of the Division of Land Economics, BAE.
- KARL A. FOX, Head of the Bureau's Division of Statistical and Historical Research, has gained recognition for his work on the analysis of demand for farm products.
- FREDERICK V. WAUGH, Assistant Chief of BAE for Prices, Income, and Marketing, has long pioneered in the development of new techniques of economic and econometric research and their application to agricultural problems.
- NATHAN M. KOFFSKY, Associate Head of the Division of Statistical and Historical Research, has long been interested in the measurement of income and the analysis of growth factors in the economy. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the Conference on Research in Income and Wealth, sponsored by the National Bureau of Economic Research.
- F. F. ELLIOTT, Associate Chief of BAE, has a long-standing interest in problems of underdeveloped countries. He has participated in a number of economic studies in such countries, as well as in FAO conferences concerned with international cooperation in this field.
