Contributors

MARTIN J. GERRA has been working for the past 2 years with MARGUERITE C. BURK, head of the Food Consumption Section, Statistical and Historical Research Branch, Agricultural Marketing Service, on the development of new indexes for use in analysis of the utilization of farm products. His experience in the Bureau of Labor Statistics on the revision of the Wholesale Price and the Consumers' Price Indexes contributed considerably to the new project. Miss Burk is well known to our readers through past contributions.

BARBARA B. REAGAN is in the Home Economics Research Branch of Agricultural Research Service. In recent years she has specialized in family income and expenditure surveys and analysis of rural living.

BURTON L. FRENCH is a statistician in the Production Economics Research Branch, Agricultural Research Service. He was formerly Assistant Professor of Agricultural Economics, University of Nebraska, and the Nebraska representative on the North Central Population Dynamics Technical Committee, NC-18.
