RONALD L. MIGHELL, agricultural economist in charge of economic research in feed-livestock relationships in the Farming Efficiency Section, Production Economics Research Branch, ARS, is author of the new book American Agriculture, Its Structure and Place in the Economy. This is the first volume in the Census Monograph Series, sponsored by the Social Science Research Council.

WALTER A. HENDRICKS, a frequent contributor, is in charge of research and development work, Agricultural Estimates Division, AMS.

HAROLD F. BREIMYER is responsible for livestock price analysis and the livestock meat outlook in the Agricultural Economics Division, AMS.

BENNETT S. WHITE, JR., Research Coordinator in the State Experiment Stations Division of ARS, entered the Department in 1935 as a commodity analyst in the former Bureau of Agricultural Economics, and was Head of the Division of Marketing and Transportation Research from 1947 to 1953. He taught marketing and finance in the College of Agriculture at the University of Kentucky, 1939-42, and for some years has been a lecturer at the University of Virginia.

HARRY A. STEELE is Head, Land and Water Section, Production Economics Research Branch, ARS. He has been engaged for many years in economic research on land and water problems in the western states for the Department.

GLADYS L. BAKER is an agricultural historian with the Statistical and Historical Research Branch of AMS.

T. ROY REID, Director of the Graduate School of the United States Department of Agriculture, was formerly Director of Personnel and Assistant to the Secretary of the Department.

MARTIN J. GERRA, an agricultural economic statistician in the Statistical and Historical Research Branch, AMS, is engaged in demand analysis.

JAMES E. CROSBY, JR., is Director of the Division of Agricultural Programs of the Federal Extension Service. For several years he was associated with the farm planning work in the Agricultural Extension Service of Missouri as Assistant Director of Extension.

CARLETON P. BARNES, Research Coordinator in the Office of the Administrator, ARS, serves as executive secretary for the research advisory committees for production economics, forest, farm and home equipment and structures, and soils, water and fertilizer.

JAMES P. CAVIN, new editor of Agricultural Economics Research, is Chief of the Statistical and Historical Research Branch, AMS. Formerly with BAE and most recently with the Office of Statistical Standards of the Bureau of the Budget, he is well known to our readers for past contributions. HERMAN M. SOUTHWORTH, whom he succeeds, has been granted a year's leave of absence as recipient of a Rockefeller Public Service Award for review and appraisal of agricultural marketing research. RAYMOND P. CHRISTENSEN, Agricultural Economist, Production Economics Research Branch, ARS, and WINN FINNER, Assistant Chief, Market Organization and Costs Branch, Marketing Research Division, AMS, have been appointed assistant editors to be responsible for contributions originating in their agencies.
