FARM PRODUCTION, FARM DISPOSITION AND VALUE OF PRINCIPAL FIELD CROPS
Revised Estimates, 1944-49 1/

Presented in the following pages are revised estimates of farm disposition and value of field crops, a consequence of the revisions of estimated production of these crops for the 1944-49 period. Attention is directed to the bibliography on the inside back cover for a list of the reports which carry data for the earlier years of the series and for commodities not included in this report. Statistics for current years are released annually in the reports "Farm Production, Farm Disposition and Value of Principal Crops."

Estimates of farm disposition, as the term implies, relate to disposition of a given year's production on the farms producing the crop. Estimates of quantities fed to livestock represent the portion of the year's production fed on the farms that produced the crop; thus, they do not represent total quantities of such crops ultimately used for livestock feeding. In the case of soybeans, peanuts, cowpeas and velvetbeans, neither the total harvested production nor quantities fed to livestock include the quantities "hogged off" on farms. For certain crops, total seed used is estimated, as well as the portion which is home grown; i.e., used on farms where it was produced. In these instances, the "Sold" item includes the portion of seed not home grown.

Sources of the data basic to these estimates of farm disposition vary with the different commodities. For some, certain items of farm use are estimated from returns obtained by special crop disposition inquiries, in which farmers report for their own farms on the quantities of each crop produced and used on the farm for each purpose. For some crops, sales are estimated directly from reports of growers on quantities produced and portions sold. Wherever possible, sales are checked with such independent data as reports of processors, records of shipments by truck, railroads and steamships, and other records of quantities used.

The value of sales is computed by applying the season average price of a commodity to the estimated quantity sold. Total production and quantities consumed in the farm home are also evaluated at the season average price. These value estimates are for the marketing season, or crop-year; they should not be confused with cash income, which is calculated for the calendar year.

Season average prices, in most cases are averages in which the mid-month prices published currently in "Agricultural Prices," are weighted for each State by the estimated quantities sold in that State each month of the crop marketing season. This season average price includes allowance for purchase agreement deliveries and unredeemed loans at average loan value for those crops and those years in which such quantities were significant. Season average prices for some commodities, such as popcorn and Louisiana sugarcane for sirup, are based primarily on special survey data. For some others, such as sugarcane for sirup (except Louisiana) and sorgo sirup, prices are as reported December 1 each year. Marketing seasons for the various crops are shown on the inside back cover.

1/ The estimates for field crops were prepared by H. R. Walker, D. D. Pittman, R. F. Gurtz, T. J. Kuzelka, C. G. Carpenter, John A. Hicks, H. G. Brown and R. D. Bass under the general direction of C. E. Burkhead, Head, Division of Field Crop Statistics; for sweetpotatoes, by G. B. Strong, under the general direction of R. Royston, Head, Division of Fruit and Vegetable Statistics. Season average prices were prepared by R. H. Moats, G. A. Swanson, R. E. Johnson and Margie M. Armstrong, under the general direction of B. R. Stauber, Head, Division of Agricultural Price Statistics. Most of the basic data were gathered by the Agricultural Statisticians in charge of field offices; thus, these estimates are a joint product of the field and Washington offices.
