FIELD AND SEED CROPS--BY STATES, 1949-1954

Farm Disposition, Season Average Price, Value of Production, and Value of Sales.

Revised Estimates

Presented in the following pages are revised estimates of farm disposition, season average price, and value of field and seed crops, a consequence of the revision of estimated production of these crops for 1949-54. Statistics are released annually in the reports "Field and Seed Crops--Farm Disposition, Season Average Price, Value of Production, and Value of Sales."

Estimates of farm disposition, as the term implies, relate to disposition of a given year's production on the farms producing the crop. Estimates of quantities fed to livestock and poultry represent the portion of the year's production fed on the farms that produced the crop; thus, they do not represent total quantities of such crops ultimately used for livestock and poultry feeding. Grain purchased for feed does not enter into these feed estimates. Some of the products shown as "sold" from farms are used for feed and seed on other farms in the same or other States. For soybeans, peanuts, cowpeas, and velvetbeans, neither the total harvested production nor quantities fed to livestock include the quantities "hogged off" on farms. For certain crops, total seed requirements are shown, and for some a further breakdown is made to show homegrown seed. The difference between total seed and homegrown seed would thus represent purchased seed, which is included in the quantity sold. For corn, the quantity sold pertains only to grain corn; the quantity fed includes not only the grain corn fed, but also the grain equivalent of corn used as silage and forage.

Quantities of principal feed crops sold and used in the farm household, if any, are estimated directly and the residual--production less household use and sales--is shown as used for feed and seed. For certain commodities, of which there is virtually no farm use, the entire production is shown as sales. Sales of some commodities are estimated directly from an analysis of survey data in which farmers report production and sales. For others, special disposition inquiries are made in which farmers report their production of each commodity and the quantities used on their farms for each purpose. Whenever possible, sales have been checked by enumerations, such as reports of processors, or by records of handlings and shipments by rail, truck, and boat.

Season average prices by States are, for most commodities, the estimated midmonth prices received by farmers weighted by estimated percentages sold in each month of the crop marketing season. Season average prices for popcorn, broomcorn, cowpeas for peas, sugarcane for sirup, maple products, hops, and most seeds are based primarily upon special survey data. Prices for sugarcane sirup (except Louisiana), sorghum sirup, and velvetbeans are those reported on December 1 of each year. Price estimating procedure makes allowance in season average prices for loans unredeemed at the end of the crop marketing season and for quantities bought by the Government under purchase agreements when such transactions are of significant volume. The season average price for the United States is obtained by weighting State prices by quantities sold. A United States price weighted by production may be derived by dividing U. S. value of production by quantity produced.

The season average prices for quantities sold are also used to evaluate total quantities produced, and quantities used on farms. Value of sales is computed by applying the unit price to quantity sold during the marketing year. In like manner, value of production and of home consumption are computed by applying the season average price to the quantity produced or used. The value estimates are for the marketing season, or crop year; they should not be confused with cash income, which is calculated on a calendar year basis.

The marketing season for each crop, and a bibliography for the earlier years of the series and of other farm disposition reports are shown on pages 87 and 88.
