"THE FOODSERVICE INDUSTRY: TYPE, QUANTITY, AND VALUE OF FOODS USED"

ABSTRACT

Operators of away-from-home eating places purchased food and nonalcoholic beverages valued at $12.2 billion in 1969, up $2.4 billion since 1966. Although most purchases were made at the wholesale level, some were made at other distribution levels, including retail. Beef was by far the most important food group and accounted for about $2.7 billion, or 21.9 percent, of the value of all food purchased. The next significant food group, dairy products and ices, had $1.4 billion, or 11.7 percent, of purchases. Groups which accounted for 5-10 percent of total purchases were meats other than beef, bakery products, fish and shellfish, poultry and eggs, and beverages. The estimates include all away-from-home eating places except those operated in conjunction with elementary and secondary schools, the military services, Federal hospitals, correctional institutions, in-transit feeding operations, and boardinghouses.

Keywords: Foodservice industry, Restaurants, Market for food consumed away from home, Away-from-home eating, Institutional feeding.

PREFACE

The two-part study of the market for food served away from home, on which this report is based, was a joint effort of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and the food industry. The Marketing Economics Division of USDA made the study, which began in 1966, under the general supervision of William S. Hoofnagle and Robert E. Frye. Julia Dorish was instrumental in facilitating work with food codes and conversion factors and in organizing, maintaining, and checking tabular output. Lawrence H. Pope and Clarence A. Dunkerley of the Department's Statistical Reporting Service assisted in development and evaluation of sampling techniques and procedures.

Financial support was provided by individual firms, associations, and commodity groups with an interest in the foodservice industry. Leadership in organizing and coordinating the industry's contribution to the study was provided by Reuben R. Cordova, Executive Vice President, International Foodservice Manufacturers Association (IFMA); Donald Greenaway, former Executive Vice President, National Restaurant Association; and William W. Carpenter, Executive Secretary, National Association of Food Equipment Manufacturers. Instrumental in organizing and developing the study were Jack H. Wall, President, Jack Wall and Company; Frank H. Jaffe, Director, Development Planning, Universal Food Corporation; James E. Flurry, formerly Manager, Institutional Sales, The Quaker Oats Company; and John F. Hayes, General Manager, Marketing Services, H. J. Heinz Company. Data were gathered by National Analysts, Inc., under contract with USDA.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Appreciation is extended to members of the Marketing Research Committee of IFMA who gave valuable assistance in phase II of the study, particularly John F. Hayes, General Manager, Marketing Services, H. J. Heinz Company, who was committee chairman for 1968 and 1969; William S. Ash, Manager, Group Marketing Research, Glidden-Durkee Division, SCM Corporation, committee chairman for 1970; and H. Kris Paulus, Marketing Research, The Procter and Gamble Company, committee vice-chairwoman. In addition, the National Restaurant Association and the many trade publications were very successful through articles and personal contacts in gaining the cooperation of numerous foodservice operators.

THE MARKET FOR FOOD CONSUMED AWAY FROM HOME: DOLLAR VALUE STATISTICS

BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURES

Presented here is a tabulation of data showing the value of food and nonalcoholic beverages received by away-from-home eating places in 1969. This report supplements volume data published in "The Foodservice Industry: Type, Quantity, and Value of Foods Used," Economic Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Statistical Bulletin 476, November 1971. Details of methodology, covered fully in that publication, are not repeated here. Data were obtained through personal interviews with foodservice operators from a national sample of establishments offering meals, snacks, or beverages for on-premise or immediate consumption. All outlets were sampled except those operated in conjunction with elementary and secondary schools, the military services, Federal hospitals, Federal and State correctional institutions, in-transit feeding operations, and boardinghouses. Estimates are based on reported values of individual foods received during a 7-day period in 1969 by nearly 3,000 foodservice operators in the 48 contiguous States. Interviews were scheduled randomly over the year to minimize the effect of seasonal influences on food purchasing patterns, and estimates were expanded to reflect yearly totals.

RESULTS

Operators of foodservice establishments represented in the survey purchased food and nonalcoholic beverages valued at $12.2 billion in 1969. The equivalent is more than 37 billion pounds of food with a retail value of $27.3 billion.

To provide a profile of food usage, each individual product received by sample foodservice outlets was assigned to one of 16 major food groups. These were: dairy products and ices; fats and oils; flour and cereal products; bakery products; beef; other red meats; poultry and eggs; fish and shellfish; sugar and sweets; vegetables; fruits; juices, ades, and drinks; beverages; soups, sauces, and gravies; prepared food and mixtures; and nuts, condiments, and leavenings.

By far the most important food group, beef accounted for about $2.7 billion, or 21.9 percent, of the value of all food purchased. The next significant group, dairy products and ices, had $1.4 billion, or 11.7 percent of purchases. Groups representing 5-10 percent of total purchases were meats other than beef, vegetables, bakery products, fish and shellfish, poultry and eggs, and beverages.

Information for individual foods was tabulated only for those items reported at least 40 times. Data are provided for about 600 of the 4,000 foods reported. Of these, 13 were substantially important; each had a purchase value greater than $200 million and a combined total of more than $5 billion. Four of the 13 foods were beef items and three were dairy products. Beef steaks and ground beef had purchase values of $940.4 million and $832.3 million, respectively. Fresh milk accounted for $451.2 million; beef roasts, carcass and wholesale beef cuts, coffee, and broilers and fryers had shares of $300 million to $400 million each. The remaining items--shrimp, ham, cheese, fresh eggs, hamburger buns, and ice cream--represented $200 million to $300 million each.

The foodservice industry is delineated into two basic sectors--public and institutional. Public eating places exist primarily to sell a product or service for profit. In the public sector, food service may be provided as a subordinate facility--such as a drugstore soda fountain or bowling alley snack bar--or as the major business--such as a separate eating place.

In 1969, establishments in the public sector accounted for 84 percent of the cost value of foods purchased by all businesses surveyed. Separate eating places alone had 59 percent of the value of purchases. Hotels, motels, and tourist courts comprised the next most important business in the sector with almost 6 percent of all purchases.

In the institutional sector, the primary purpose of such businesses as universities, sanatoriums, and homes for children is rendering a nonprofit service. Institutions accounted for about 16 percent of the food and non-alcoholic beverage purchases made by the businesses surveyed. In this sector, hospitals and colleges were highly significant, each market accounting for about 6 percent of the value of all purchases. Of the establishments not surveyed, all but a very few would have been classified as institutions had they been included.
