BACK NUMBERS OF THE INDIAN JOURNAL OF AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS

A number of members and research institutions have written to the Society for the supply of the back numbers of the Journal. Unfortunately the office has not been able to honour the request as quite a large number of back Journals are out of stock. It is likely that quite a number of our members, who, though they are serious and regular students of the subject, may not be interested in keeping a complete record of the Journals they received. They would, therefore, be inclined to part with them to institutions particularly who would be preserving them for their research value and future use by scholars and students. It therefore occurred to us to approach the members through the columns of this Journal to enquire of them whether they would kindly agree to part with the previous issues of the publication. We give below the back numbers of the Journal which are out of print. If, on perusal, members feel they have some or more of the issues which they can spare they are requested to kindly communicate with the office of the Society with full details. It is proposed, thereafter, to collate the data received in this way for the supply of the numbers and institutions who have expressed the desire to possess these back numbers. It would be possible to make quick arrangements by which the exchange of back numbers in this way is completed as quickly as possible.
