IAAE COUNTRY/AREA REPRESENTATIVES

The country/area representative is a key person in the IAAE professional network. It is their essential role to foster the aims and activities in their country or area. One crucial aspect is the maintenance of an active group of members who receive the full benefits of IAAE membership. This can only occur if they have individually paid their membership fees for the current triennium. To be a country/area representative, one must be a currently paidup member of IAAE.

The IAAE has members in more than 100 countries. Country or area representatives have been designated for 88.

JOACHIM VON BRAUN, VICE PRESIDENT PROGRAM

Joachim von Braun, is Vice President of the International Association of Agricultural Economists (IAAE) and in that function responsible for the program of the XXIII International Conference of IAAE in Sacramento, 1997. Von Braun is a German citizen, married to Barbara von Braun, who is an agricultural economist, too. He completed his degree in agricultural economics at the University of Bonn, Germany and received his doctoral degree in agricultural economics from the University of Goettingen, Germany, where he also later (1983) was awarded professorial title in Agricultural Economics.

From 1982 to 1989 von Braun was a Research Fellow at the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI), Washington, D.C., USA and from 1990 to 1993 Director of IFPRI's Food Consumption and Nutrition Division. Since April 1993 he holds the Chair for Food Economics, Food Policy and World Food Issues at the University of Kiel, Germany. In September of 1997 he will move to University of Bonn, Germany and become a Director of the newly founded Center for Development Research and Head of the Center's Economics Department.

Von Braun serves on boards of publishers of several journals (World Development, Quarterly Journal for

IAAE PUBLICATIONS

There has been a standard pattern of publications which has been followed by IAAE over the past seven conference periods. Every member will normally have received three publications - The Proceedings, (hard back, blue book), Occasional Paper (softback), both mailed from Dartmouth Publishing, and a Members Bulletin (orange) mailed from the Editorial Office, Oxford.

Due to unforeseen circumstances there were problems in preparing the Harare Occasional Paper, Number 7. These have now been overcome and a volume titled, "Issues in Agricultural Competitiveness: Markets and Policies", edited by Roger Rose, Carolyn Tanner, and Margot Bellamy is expected to be ready for distribution shortly. It is a 486 page book, with 45 contributed papers and abstracts of all poster papers. This will be mailed automatically to 1993-95 members. We apologize to all those who have been affected by the delay.

The materials presented at this Conference in Sacramento will be handled in a different way. There will be only two publications, both due in 1998, The Proceedings and a special issue of our journal, Agricultural Economics, prepared under the guest

PROGRAM ASSISTANCE

Behind the scenes at every conference are a number of people who do not get the headlines but make a difference in the way conference participants are treated and insure that the program runs as smoothly as it does.

International Agriculture), is member of the Scientific Advisory Board of German Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development, and member of several academic associations, incl. the German Economics Association, the German and European Agricultural Economics Associations.

His research and related journal and book publications addresses international food policy topics, commercialization of agriculture, rural employment, agricultural policy issues of transforming economies, demand analysis, famine prevention, economics of biodiversity and biotechnology. Extended research cooperation in specific countries include for instance Egypt, Ethiopia, Gambia, Tanzania, Guatemala, China, Russia.

editorship of Peter Hazell. The latter will contain 20 contributed papers from the conference. The Proceedings, to be edited by Joachim von Braun and George Peters, will include familiar material including the Presidential Address, Elmhirst Lecture, the plenary papers, and the synoptic view of the President Elect. In addition it will include a further 20 contributed papers, reports on the newly instituted Panel Discussions, and other material previously in the Members Bulletin (biographies of new life members, and reports on the Discussion Group/Minisymposia meetings) or in the Occasional Paper (abstracts of posters and information about the computer sessions).

These changes have been decided upon by the Executive Committee. The production of two rather than three publications will result in considerable economy in printing and distribution costs, some streamlining of the editorial process and importantly, a role for the Journal as a vehicle for inclusion of conference papers. It will also mean that important elements of our meeting will be disseminated more widely.

George Peters, Editor of Proceedings

Meet Toni Purves, long time staff member at the Farm Foundation in Oak Brook, Illinois who has answered your questions and made changes during the week at the Membership Information Desk for IAAE. Working with her and Walt Armbruster at the Farm Foundation is Steve A. Halbrook, Assoc. Managing Director, well-known to most US members of IAAE and now known to many others as well.

Working with Dr. Joachim von Braun on program details and the many things small and large that need to be done before and during the Conference are four PhD students at the University of Kiel. If you have not met them yet, they are Gerta Gerdes (student of W. Scheper), Ulf A. Stolzke (student of R.A.E. Mueller), Detlef Virchow (student of J. von Braun) and Katinka Weinberger (student of J. von Braun). Gerta Gerdes has worked on the copy and content of all of the daily editions of the Cowbell since her designation for this assignment in April by Dr. von Braun. Ulf, Gerta, and Detlef are also presenting posters during the conference.

Jerry Siebert, University of California, Berkeley has taken the leadership in providing the local arrangements we have all enjoyed. His key assistants from his office, who have also been working with him here in Sacramento, are Denise Durland in organizing and managing the registration process; Geralyn Unterberg in preparing the first and second conference announcements and working with the California Department of Agriculture; and Noreen Wong in finding ways to do the many things, large and small, that need to be done behind the scenes.

To each of those named above and the many unnamed others who do the work that makes for an enjoyable conference, our thanks and best wishes. We appreciate their contributions and service.

HARARE CONTRIBUTED PAPERS

IAAE Occasional Paper No. 7, with 45 papers and the poster abstracts from the 1994 Harare conference has now been published. Titled: "Issues in Agricultural Competitiveness: Market and Policies" it has been edited by Roger Rose (ABARE), Carolyn Tanner (University of Sydney) and Margot Bellamy (CABI, International). Dartmouth Publishing began mailing copies to members for the 1993-95 period in July. An inspection copy is available in the Sequoia Room. G.H. Peters, IAAE Proceedings Editor
